

Coalitions of Color and the Rule of Law in The Trump Administration

October 18-20, 2018

The times in which we live require concerted activities among many different progressive coalitions, particularly people of color, to preserve the rule of law. The Trump Administration has initiated many policies and laws that have negatively affected communities of color, women, and immigrants. It has also revived a “law and order” narrative that adversely affected communities of color in the 1980s, 1990s, and 2000s. The rule of law is under great strain because of the actions of the Administration and the ongoing packing of the courts to achieve ends that are deleterious to women and people of color. The need for a rule of law principle that strengthens and protects communities of color has never been greater.

This Conference will bring together law professors of color and allies to define and explicate the rule of law in this era. The Western Law Professors of Color and the Conference of Asian Pacific American Law Faculty (CAPALF) invites all faculty with an interest or affiliation in the West (broadly defined) to Las Vegas from the afternoon of Thursday October 18 to the afternoon of Saturday October 20, 2018 at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas William S. Boyd School of Law.

Co-Chairs Nancy Chi Cantalupo, Frank Rudy Cooper, Ruben Garcia, and Rebecca Lee, invite you on behalf of the Planning Committee

Space in the hotel is limited, please register now!
